CHARLOTTE, N. C.

For his untiring efforts and achievements for the advancement of Dentistry, we affectionately dedicate this volume.

DR. CHARLES L. ALEXANDER

DR. J. A. CAMERON HOGGAN

A few weeks ago the friends of Dr. J. A. Cameron Hoggan, of Richmond, Va., received a distressing and unexpected shock at his untimely death. In this premature bereavement our profession has lost not only a master orthodontist, but a true and loyal friend, who has given of his talents unsparingly.

As Dean of a struggling department at the Medical College of Virginia, he carved his own monument in the form of a recognized Department operated on a parity with the other schools. He was best known for his understanding of the problems confronting all the schools of the College.

His own private life was filled with the expression of beauty, for he was an amateur artist of recognized ability, an expert in the culture of flowers, a most delightful host and an indefatigable worker in all charitable movements.

The North Carolina Dental Society, suffers a distinct loss in his untimely death.

FOREWORD BY PRESIDENT

Two Factions—Will the attitude of the officers of our Society injure the attendance at the Charlotte meeting?

Quite naturally factions develop in every healthy organization and should not be discouraged as long as they are guided by fair play. There has, however, recently arisen in our Society a new clique headed by two of our members who, with their friends, avowedly have thrown fair play to the winds and purpose, by fair means or foul, to dominate our next State meeting.

So brazenly has this been done that the officers of our Society have preferred charges against these two members and a number of their friends and assert that undoubtedly a sufficient amount of evidence is in hand to guarantee a conviction which will be followed by dismissal.

The question which consequently arises is: will this action on the part of our officers react unfavorably as regards the attendance at Charlotte?

I am reminded of the case of Major X who, having been guilty of some minor indiscretion which disturbed the puritanical equilibrium of some of the more strait-laced brethren of the congregation and being approached by a committee of the elders requesting his resignation, under threat of expulsion at their next regular meeting, which would be held on the following Wednesday evening, replied that he would not withdraw, neither would they expell him but that he would come to the meeting on Wednesday and challenge each of them to tell all that they knew about him at that time and that he, in turn, would tell everything that he knew about them.

Wednesday finally arrived and at the appointed time and place friend X presented himself at the Church.

To tell the rest in his own words, "There wasn't a soul there but me and the janitor."

And now to get back to the matter in hand—if the officers of our Society who are openly making this fight are successful in ejecting this above-mentioned clique headed by Drs. I. M. Bigg and U. R. Small and their friends—Envy, Jealousy, Malice, Discontent and Greed, how many of us are going to be disqualified?

CAN YOU MAKE THE GRADE?

My prediction is that this is going to be the largest and the best meeting that the North Carolina Dental Society has ever had, and that our whole organization is going to unite in forming still ANOTHER CLIQUE, guided and directed by our old friends who have for so long stood by as a refuge for the penitent soul in distress.

Dr. William J. Gies' Report on Dental Education to the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and its significance to the Dental and Medical Professions of North Carolina.

BY ALBERT L. MIDGLEY, D.M.D., Sc.D., F.A.C.D.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

OUTLINE

An appreciation of the author and his work: aim, scope and quality of the report.

Dentistry primarily health service: allied with the practice of general medicine and the medical sciences; and to continue as an independent profession.

The conclusions of the study of dental education: their basis.

Reorganization of the entire system of dental education. At least two years of pre-professional collegiate education essential—three-year well-integrated undergraduate dental curriculum sufficient; reduction from four to three years not a backward step.

Optional full-year graduate curricula necessary; their relationships to better teaching and teachers, improved research, etc.

Advantages of combined dental and medical curricula.

Importance of establishment of dental service in hospitals and outpatient departments.

Advanced courses for dental practitioners; well-integrated curricula for hygienists, technicians and assistants.

Discontinuance of all unendowed dental schools; all forms of commercialism in dental education;—privately-owned post-graduate dental schools; dental trade journalism; supply house courses, etc.

Promotion of effective medico-dental relationship in North Carolina, in dental education and professional activities.

Dentistry in hospitals and infirmaries throughout the State; dental representation on health service commissions.

Combined medical and dental meetings; medico-dental journalism.

The inclusion of a dental school in Duke University.

The opportunities and responsibilities in this relation for Duke University and the dental and Medical Professions of North Carolina.

TUESDAY MORNING, 9:00 O'CLOCK

"Why and how to fill root canals"

By Arthur B. Crane, D. D. S. Washington, D. C.

SYNOPSIS: Nature has so constructed the tooth root that there can be no transmission of infection except by way of the apical foramina or abnormal openings and has provided the periapical tissues with a defensive mechanism which makes root-canal filling feasible in many cases. Dead dentine is not a menace to the organism. The management of each tooth should be decided only after the most careful diagnosis.

The radiogram indicates certain periapical tissue changes which may be classified but clinical tests are equally valuable.

The innocuousness of the pulpless tooth is pre-eminently dependent upon the closure of the apical foramina. With proper management such a result is often possible. The over-filled canal defeats its own purpose. By practicable methods the extent of the canal-filling can be pre-determined.

SYNOPSIS OF CLINIC:

CLINIC

Finding the canals.
Exploring the canals.
Enlarging the canals.
Management of recent devitalizations.
Management of putrescent cases.
Management of periapical disease.

Non-Members

This article is written especially to the dentists in the State of North Carolina, who have not, for some reason, affiliated themselves with the North Carolina Dental Society, and to those who have enjoyed the membership in the Society, and who have allowed themselves to become inactive.

The question arises, but the answer remains to be solved. We want more men in the Society, good-ethical men. We need YOU and without egotism, feel you need us. It is worth by far more than the dues paid in each year to have the acquaintance and contact of five hundred of the best men in the State, worth—nay more than worth your time and money to attend the annual meetings, and receive the benefit from the Clinics.

Some of us are of the opinion that if our membership was desired in the Society, some member would make us a special visit and personally extend us an invitation to become a member, it is not that each member would not do that if called upon, but thoughtlessness, procrastination, and lack of time prevent. Statistics show North Carolina to have some eight hundred white practicing dentists, with a membership in the North Carolina Dental Society of approximately five hundred men. We cannot afford to engage the services of any one man to call on the three hundred remaining non-members, personally inviting them to become members of the North Carolina Dental Society, therefore, we extend this as a personal invitation to each of you who are non-members to get in touch with the District Secretary, make application for membership, thereby availing yourself of the opportunity to meet with us this year in Charlotte at our 54th annual meeting, which promises to be one of the most successful and interesting meetings ever known in the history of the Society.

Remember there is no day like today, and with the meeting so close at hand there is no time to put off, the dates are April 16-17-18, the place is Charlotte, N. C. Headquarters Charlotte Hotel. Will you be numbered among us?

Deeds and Creeds

Alas! to think how many peoples creeds, are contradicted by their deeds. We want to feel that our creed is to live right, do right, help our fellowman whenever the opportunity presents, help our State Society, and we would if we were called upon personally, but we lack the initiative to do lots of things we could do, that would not only better the Society, but would help our fellowmen.

When we became members of the North Carolina Dental Society, it was our aim to be a live man in the organization, to make the membership proud it had accepted our application. All of us have something the other fellow could use to our advantage, but for fear of criticism, lack of confidence, etc., we keep it to ourselves, thereby failing to do our duty both to ourselves and to our fellow practitioner i. e., if you have a dollar and I have a dollar and we trade, we both still have just a dollar, and we are none the better off, but if you have an idea and I have an idea and we trade, you then have two ideas and I have two, and we are both winners, thus we derive benefit from the Clinics, etc., given at the meetings, whether District or State, so it is your duty to your creed, in order to live by deed what you feel is right, to attend both your District and State meetings, advance any idea you may have and take home what the other fellow has advanced.

Remember, not failure, but low aim is crime, and we must aim high if we ever expect our State Organization to grow and be recognized as one of the leading organizations in the South. We have some of the best men in our Society as can be found in the United States, but a few cannot accomplish, or realize a goal, unless every member does his or her part, and lives up to his or her creed by deed.

INDECISION

The sun rose; it rose upon no sadder sight than the man of good abilities, good emotions, incapable of their directed exercise, incapable of his own help—and his own happiness, sensible of the blight upon him, and resigning himself to let it eat him away.

An Article Of Interest

BY R. A. LITTLE, D. D. S., ASHEVILLE, N. C.

In the last issue of the Bulletin, there was an article by Dr. I. R. Self, President-Elect of the North Carolina Dental Society setting forth his reasons for favoring the proposed amendment to the Constitution and By-Laws that defines membership in the North Carolina Dental Society.

I grant you that the ideal condition would be for every member of any subordinate society to also be a member of the State Society and thus a member of the American Dental Association. Not only be a member but attend its meetings and take part in its proceedings. To my mind it seems that it is quite a little jump from graduation to membership in these higher bodies. One only has to look at the programs that are being put on in each district to realize that a great deal is being done for Dentistry and for the individual dentist. Why then deprive men of this opportunity to help themselves and their professions who can not see their way clear to joining the higher bodies. Isn't it reasonable to suppose that if a man interests himself in the District Society that he will eventually want to join the State Society? If he never joins any other Society the District Society has fulfilled at least a greater part of its mission. That these non-members have a part in the election of delegates is a negligible matter. I do not recall and I dare say no one else can, of any delegate who has ever been nominated or elected by any such votes as a delegate to the State Society. Certainly not in the First District. What is there to gain? Absolutely not a member. What is there to lose? An opportunity to make State Society members of these men and to help them as it surely does by belonging to the District Society.

By making it compulsory to be a member of the State Society, we defeat the very purpose for which these District Societies were formed. Rather let us go in to the out of way places and bring these men into our District Societies and then we will have an opportunity to show them the benefits to be derived from active participation in the dental organizations of their state and their nation.

Dangerous Dentistry

BY WICKES WAMBOLDT

The dentist could truthfully say to the patient what the parent often says to the child, "This hurts me more than it does you." Actually dentistry is harder on the dentist than on the patient. Dentistry really is dangerous to the dentist while it usually is not dangerous to the patient.

The profession of dentistry is said to be the most hazardous of all professions unless one considers experimentation with high explosives a profession. The claim is made that dentists are shorter lived than men of other professions.

Physicians, lawyers and ministers live longer than dentists. Why? Fundamentally because the dentist is so placed that a good part of the time he doesn't breathe what could be called strictly pure oxygen. And the posture of the dentist while he is at work is not conducive to health. All day long he is on his feet, and most of the time bending forward. And while he is bending forward he is peering into the mouths of all sorts of persons afflicted with all sorts of ailments and inhaling their breaths.

And that isn't the worst of it. During the time the dentist is grinding away on a deteriorating tooth with his tiny instrument of torture, the air is filled with invisible particles of decayed tissue which get into the dentist's air passages. Infection of the nose and throat and of the sinuses, and often of the lungs themselves, constantly menaces the dentist; and even though he contracts no specific disease his system is being more or less incessantly poisoned, his general health undermined.

So the next time you are in the dentist's chair look on him with a new interest and say to yourself, "Here is a man giving up his life that people may chew better and live longer. He is actually shortening his existence in order to fix my teeth." And while the nerves all over you are hopping and jumping remember that no matter how you may feel, the dentist is getting the worst of it.

Charlotte is to be host to the North Carolina Dental Society this year at its 54th annual meeting. Let us endeavor to put forth our "Very Best" and make this meeting one that will go down in history as the most exceptional for interest and entertainment.

Minnesota—Vacation Land

Now is the time to think about your summer's vacation. Minneapolis and its surrounding country-side is open to you for the greatest vacation you have ever enjoyed. This summer you can plan to take in the greatest meeting the American Dental Association has ever held, and at the same time take advantage of the many recreational facilities that the great State of Minnesota affords its visitors.

In the extreme north, remote and inaccessible except by canoe, extends a vast region of "sky-blue waters" and virgin forests. Here, at our last frontier, you can enter and explore a rugged country of compelling interest.

A little further south, through an area equally as scenic, excellent highways have been built. Here is the vanguard of the famous summer resorts.

Every taste can be satisfied in Minnesota. You will find luxury and refinement in modern resorts, a carefree western spirit of welcome in tourist camps. You may enjoy the solitude and beauty of the North Woods in some hidden cabin or on a canoe trip; you may rest in a quiet family hotel, or you may frolic at some gay rendezvous.

If you are a fisherman your choice of ten thousand lakes within the borders of our state is yours for the asking. Every kind of fishing is open to you—pike, bass, muskie, trout and innumerable other species—and your appetite for this great sport will be satisfied.

If you are an automobile tourist you will revel in the countless beautiful highways that we have to offer you. These wide, smooth highways spread in a network all over the state. Millions of dollars have been spent in the last few years in improving and maintaining Minnesota's roads.

If you are a golf enthusiast you will find many splendid courses in the city of Minneapolis itself, and if you plan to visit one of our world famed summer resorts, of which there are thousands, you will find many of these equipped with a golf course.

And so from Minneapolis, our next Convention City, seven thousand miles of Minnesota's trunk lines lead to superb fishing spots, camps, resorts, canoe trails through primeval forests, prosperous farm lands—or what do you want?

Plan your vacation now. Write to the American Dental Association Headquarters, 301 Donaldson Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota, for any information you may desire. It is yours for the asking. We have pledged ourselves to entertain you. Drop us a line. Above all,

COME AND BE CONVINCED!

WIT-ODONTIA

Rastus, out in a boat with his best girl, Mandy had been teasing for a kiss, but she refused again and again. Finally he became desperate.

"Mandy," he threatened, "effen you don't lemme kiss ya', I'se gwine to upset dis here boat." Getting home Mandy told her mother all about it.

"An' did you let the genman kiss you?" her mother asked.

"Well, did you see anything in de papers dis mawning about two niggahs drowning?"

UNFAIR TO RASTUS

Rastus: "Chief, ah needs protection! Ah done got a unanimous letter this morning which says, 'Nigger, let mah chickens alone.'"

Chief of Police: "Why protection? Leave the chickens alone."

Rastus: "Yes, but how does I know whose chickens I'se got to leave alone?"

Judge: I sentence you to hang by the neck. Have you anything to say?

Prisoner: Judge, I'm agin necking.

The newly appointed pastor of a negro church faced a packed audience when he arose to deliver a sermon on the burning question: "Is There a Hell?"

"Brethren," he said, "de Lord made the world round like a ball."

"Amen!" agreed the congregation.

"And de Lord made two axles for the world to go round on, one axle at the North Pole and one axle at the Souf Pole.

"And de Lord put a lot of oil and grease in de center of the world so as to keep de axles well greased and oiled."

"Amen!" said the congregation.

"And then a lot of sinners dug wells in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas and Mexico and Russia, and steal de Lord's oil and grease.

"And some day dey will have all of de Lord's oil and grease, and dem axles is gonna git hot. And den, dat will be hell, bredren, dat will be hell."

Judge: "This man says that after he fired a shot, he saw you run from his chicken coop."

Rastus Johnsing: "He could easy be mistaken, Jedge. Fast ez Ah was runnin', it mought have been some one else what faintly resembles me."

Doctor (examining a negro, very much under the influence of liquor): "Why, this man's been drugged!"

Mose: "Yes, suh, I know's it. I drugged him all de way from de saloon."

Mandy Johnson—I want to see Mister Hamlin.

Office Boy—Mr. Hamlin is engaged.

Mandy Johnson—Go long, boy, Ah don't want to marry him his washlady wants huh money.

TRUBYTE

They seem to be a part of the face, not apart from it

IF ALL Nature's gifts to Beauty, the teeth are the most important, because not only do they "make" the face, but Health itself depends on them. The premature loss of teeth has often affected the social aspirations of many women and limited the business growth of many men.

Trubyte Teeth combine Beauty of appearance and Efficiency of mastication. There is an undoubted reward awaiting the dentist who will carry his prosthetic work beyond the mechanical stage to the point of true restoration—of appearance as well as function.

Trubyte Teeth give your patients that measure of assurance which comes only with the freedom from dental handicaps.
